czars of the east is my humble tribute to two of the greatest exponents of indian cricket who hail from the eastern zone of india they are icons not just for the youth in this country rather their popularity extends across various demographic segments simply because of the way they have approached the game conducted themselves on the field and off it and have been exemplary in making all of us understand the true essence of leadership they are none other than sourav ganguly and mahendra singh dhoni what makes these two cricketers so special for millions across the globe is the way they have challenged conventions norms and thoughts and have thus invented their own brand of cricket both as a player and as captain of the indian cricket team a responsibility that although make look glamorous to many superficially but is actually a nerve racking experience this book has two major sections the one dedicated to sourav ganguly and the other to mahendra singh dhoni each such section further discusses a biographical account of the two players under several heads like the formative years marriage and after on top of the game brand endorsements miscellaneous yours statistically yours followed by a picture gallery dedicated to each of these two czars of indian cricket i sincerely hope that this humble effort of mine will be thoroughly liked by myriad of dada and msd aficionados like me and they will find this book to be pleasantly different in its approach and contextual treatment
