this comprehensive handbook prepared by leading ocean policy academics and practitioners from around the world presents in depth analyses of the experiences of fifteen developed and developing nations four key regions of the world that have taken concrete steps toward cross cutting and integrated national and regional ocean policy all chapters follow a common framework for policy analysis while most coastal nations of the world already have a variety of sectoral policies in place to manage different uses of the ocean such as shipping fishing oil and gas development in the last two decades the coastal nations covered in the book have undertaken concerted efforts to articulate and implement an integrated ecosystem based vision for the governance of ocean areas under their jurisdiction this includes goals and procedures to harmonize existing uses and laws to foster sustainable development of ocean areas to protect biodiversity and vulnerable resources and ecosystems and to coordinate the actions of the many government agencies that are typically involved in oceans affairs the book highlights the serious conflicts of use in most national ocean zones and the varying attempts by nations to follow the prescriptions emanating from the 1982 un law of the sea convention and the outcomes of the 1992 2002 and 2012 sustainable development summits the interrelationship among uses and processes in the coast and ocean requires that ocean governance be integrated precautionary and anticipatory overall the book provides a definitive state of the art review analysis of national and regional ocean policies around the world this book develops a theoretical and empirical argument about the disintegration of security communities and the subsequent breakdown of stable peace among nations through a process of norm degeneration it draws together two key bodies of contemporary ir literature norms and security communities and brings their combined insights to bear on the empirical phenomenon of disintegration the investigation of normative change in ir is becoming increasingly popular most studies however focus on its progressive connotation the possibility of a weakening or even disappearance of an established peaceful normative order by contrast tends to be often either neglected or implicitly assumed normative change and security community disintegration undoing peace advances the contemporary body of research on the important role of norms and ideas by analytically extending recent constructivist arguments about international norm degeneration to the regional level and by applying them to a particular type of regional order a security community this book analyses regional interventions in african conflict spaces by engaging with political discourse theory interventions are a performance of agency but what happens if interventions are performed by forces that scholars have hardly ever considered as relevant agents in this regard based on a study of regional politics towards the crises in burundi and zimbabwe the book analyses how these interventions shaped and changed the emerging regional interveners the book engages political discourse theory proposing an understanding of intervention as a field in which multiple and heterogeneous interpretations of the violence the crisis and the future post conflict order meet it is not hard to imagine that this encounter is not harmonious per se but full of frictions by making use of political discourse theory as a grammar for studying the complexity of an intervention the focus is directed to the emerging subjectivities of regional interveners this enables a view of regional interventions that neither reduces their subjectivity to universalist categories associated with liberal peace nor overenthusiastically embraces them as the solution to all problems this book will be of interest to students of international intervention discourse theory african politics
