Capital Punishment Among the Jews 2015-08-24 essay from the year 2015 in the subject law philosophy history and sociology of law grade 4 00 indiana university college of arts and sciences political science department course pols y210 rule of law language english abstract this paper hopes to establish the continued forcefulness of cesare beccaria s argument against torture and the death penalty by reconciling its reasoning with the societal and legal context of the modern day cesare beccaria considered one of the founding fathers of enlightenment penology and legal theory is perhaps most well known for his treatise on crime and punishment in which he argues against punitive administration of torture and capital punishment this paper analyzes the arguments proposed by beccaria and reasserts their modern relevance to contemporary legal conversation on the death penalty and government administered torture weaknesses in beccaria s argument such as his questionably justified causal claims on human behavior are examined but ultimately found to not render his argument less sound insofar as it seeks to discredit capital punishment beccaria s own model of social contract theory is also examined and used as a basis by which to evaluate his legal claims

The Death Penalty 2008-10-20 essay aus dem jahr 2012 im fachbereich kulturwissenschaften karibik sprache deutsch abstract with the rise in the number of murders in the country there have been subsequent calls not only by the present government but also by members of the public to reinstate the death penalty as a means of combating the escalating crime situation and thus punishing offenders for their actions this paper seeks to firstly highlight the current state of the law regarding the death penalty in addition the strategic barriers that continue to exist which subsequently prevent the state from carrying out the death sentence will also be examined such barriers though they may prove to be a challenge for any state that intends on retaining the death penalty can however be removed and reformations can be made possible in order to make the death sentence effective

The History of the Death Penalty in the United States 2008-03-07 this consultation paper reviews the law relating to homicide in England and Wales and sets out a number of provisional proposals in order to establish a more rational and coherent framework of legislation issues discussed include the existing law and problems with it the definition of murder and manslaughter partial defences including provocation diminished responsibility and duress the fault element in murder and the concept of intention and the doctrine of double effect the paper proposes the creation of a new homicide act to replace the Homicide Act 1957 to establish clear definitions of murder and the partial defences to it as well as defining manslaughter within a graduated system of offences the ladder principle to reflect seriousness of offence and degrees of mitigation for example the offence of murder should be divided into two categories of first degree murder with a mandatory life sentence and second degree with a discretionary life sentence maximum responses to the consultation paper proposals should be received by 13 04 2006

Capital Punishment 1865 research paper undergraduate from the year 2015 in the subject law criminal process criminology law enforcement grade a university of Alaska Fairbanks language English abstract this is an investigation into the death penalty and how it is applied across political lines in America with a focus on the differences in Democratic run states and Republican run states the death penalty and its effects on a state's murder rate have long been a point of controversy it has been debated whether the death penalty is a deterrent to crime there is an ongoing need to understand the deterrence effect of the death penalty in order to understand how to properly lower the murder rates in a given area further in order to understand if the death penalty is applied in a given state it is important to look at the political orientation of a particular state political orientation can have a strong effect on the punishment type chosen by a particular state this study seeks to clarify the debate by looking at the statistical facts and formulating hypothesis 1 the death penalty is a deterrent for the crime of murder 2 conservative states are more likely to employ the death penalty null hypothesis 1 the death penalty has no effect on the murder rate 2 political leanings of a state do not determine if they have the death penalty
