The Post-Cold War International System

2004-07-31

the end of the cold war has opened up a real world laboratory in which to test and refine general theories of international relations using the frameworks provided by structural realism institutionalism and liberalism the post cold war international system examines how major powers responded to the collapse of the soviet union and developed their foreign policies over the period of post cold war transition the book argues that the democratic peace has begun to generate powerful socialisation effects due to the emergence of a critical mass of liberal democratic states since the end of the cold war the trend this has produced is similar to a pattern that classical realists have interpreted as bandwagoning within a unipolar power structure case studies of germany china and japan identified as key states with the potential to challenge us dominance provide evidence to support the assessment of international change the author concludes by exploring the implications of september 11th for the analysis developed this important volume argues that the end of the cold war was a major historical turning point in the development of world politics with fundamental implications for the basic way in which the dynamics of the international system are conceptualised is war an institution of international society and how is it constituted as such across the evolution of international society this book is an inquiry into the purpose of war as a social institution as originally put forward by hedley bull it offers a comprehensive examination of what is entailed in thinking of war as a social institution and as a mechanism for order since the terrorist attacks of 9 11 the subject of war has become increasingly relevant with questions about who can wage war against whom the way war is fought and the reasons that lead us to war exposing fundamental inadequacies in our theorisation of war war has long been considered in the discipline of international relations in the context of the problem of order however the inclusion of war as an institution is problematic for many how can we understand an idea and practice so often associated with coercion destruction and disorder as contributing to order and coexistence this study contends that an understanding of the core elements that establish the character of war as an institution of modern international society will give us important insights into the purpose if any of war in contemporary international relations this ground breaking book will be of strong interest to students and scholars of international relations international relations theory the english school security studies and warfare who has the right to wage war the answer to this question constitutes one of the most fundamental organizing principles of any international order under contemporary international humanitarian law this right is essentially restricted to sovereign states it has been conventionally assumed that this arrangement derives from the ideas of the late sixteenth century jurist alberico gentili claire vergerio argues that this story is a myth invented in the late 1800s by a group of prominent international lawyers who crafted what would become the contemporary laws of war these lawyers reinterpreted gentili s writings on war after centuries of marginal interest and this revival was deeply intertwined with a project of making the modern sovereign state the sole subject of international law by uncovering the genesis and diffusion of this narrative vergerio calls for a profound reassessment of when and with what consequences war became the exclusive prerogative of sovereign states foreign and security policy have long been removed from the political pressures that influence other areas of policymaking this has led to a tendency to separate the analytical levels of the individual and the collective using lacanian theory which views the subject as ontologically incomplete and desiring a perfect identity which is realised in fantasies or narrative scenarios this book shows that the making of foreign policy is a much more complex process emotions and affect play an important role even where hard security issues such as the use of military force are concerned eberle constructs a new theoretical framework for analysing foreign policy by capturing the interweaving of both discursive and affective aspects in policymaking he uses this framework to explain germany's often contradictory foreign policy towards the iraq crisis of 2002 2003 and the emotional even existential public debate that accompanied it this book adds to ongoing theoretical debates in international political sociology and critical security studies and will be required reading for all scholars working in these areas
